Hello all,

The Judiciary has introduced a new procedure to allow smaller charges to progress through the court process quicker, the ability to motion for an expedited trial. Should the motion be accepted, the Courts will attempt to get to trial within 7 days of the motion. Either party may motion for an expedited trial, however all parties must consent to it to move forward.

All details on how and when to motion for an expedited trial and specific guidelines can be found HERE.

To clarify, bench trials right after an individual is arrested are still able to be done, this procedure is simply another option for citizens to take. We hope this press release educates the general public on this new procedure, and that it enables the justice system to be even more efficient when possible.

Kind Regards,

Rajesh Gupta
